&Oil Change Coupons; Great CouponsSave Automotive Services on our automotive services including our Jiffy Lube Signature Services® Oil Changes! After moving to California, new residents will have to deal with their vehicle registration before taking the time to balloon some of their boxes. Within 10 days of relocation, California State law requires the registration of your overseas vehicle. Make sure you have obtained your vehicle safety check and California smog check certificate before heading to the Department of Motor Vehicles Department (DMV) office, as both are required for state vehicle registration. If your vehicle has at least 7,500 miles of hours on the odometer, then clearance checks and tests can be carried out at any smog testing station including regular smog checkpoints and repairs, smog-only testing centers, or Gold Shield smog stations. If your vehicle is new, it must be 50 State Emissions certified to be registered in California. With more than 120 locations in Southern California, your local Jiffy Lube offers vehicle maintenance including oil change services to help prepare your vehicle for inspection and ensure exhaust emissions are at an acceptable level. When you are ready to get safety checks and emissions tests, Jiffy Lube can do the job; we always provide fast, easy, and easy professional services. In addition to state security checks and emissions tests, California also requires the following to register your vehicle: Current liability insurance From state titles or pink slips of California driving license vehicle Jiffy Lube recommend contacting California DMV to find out if any other documents are required to register your vehicle. Once your vehicle has passed the security check, the state emissions test, and the remainder of your paperwork is in order, registering your vehicle will be easy. Then, you can focus on emptying the entire moving box. For California residents who are not new to the area, however, need information on how to register a vehicle, please click on the link, vehicle inspection requirements. ©2020 compatible center Jiffy Lube is owned and operated by an independent franchise.
